AUDIENCE: YEAR 11

17 March 2023

Dear Parents,

6 weeks of Literature revision sessions are now complete!

Well done to all those Year 11s who were motivated and came into school early on Friday mornings for the 8.00 am start. We know how difficult early mornings can be for teenagers!

Mrs Wallis and I have been impressed by the large numbers attending: we would like to think it is for our witty repartee and the imparting of our knowledge rather than the aromatic lure of a free croissant or pastry!

It is a shame that this morning during the last session a few individuals decided to engage in silly behaviour, throwing ham rolls across the hall during our delivery of the session. Whilst we are presenting, we cannot 'crowd control' as well (but nor should we have to), but despite stopping the session to challenge the behaviour, no one was prepared to take responsibility. Ultimately, it was left to Mrs Wallis and myself to pick up the mess prior to the exam taking place period 1, only to be confronted by a disgusting mess of whole croissants thrown on the floor in the foyer. We too have voluntarily been at school early to prepare, set up and deliver these sessions in order to support the Year 11s in the approach to the exams, so it is very disrespectful and thoughtless of the few students who have let themselves – and their year group - down. Obviously, the majority of our students know how to conduct themselves.

With four more Language sessions to go on Thursday afternoons, let's hope those students who prefer to mess around and distract the learning of others stay away: after all, these are not compulsory sessions.

Kind regards,

Miss Fisher and Mrs Wallis
